

Age Friendly Communities Conference All Means All Friday, May 14th, 2010

There is a growing international movement that supports the development of Age Friendly Communities. One of the compelling features of this movement is that it emphasizes the principle that healthy, age friendly communities are also inclusive communities. All means all!

Older adults who have disabilities challenge communities to think and act “outside the boxes” created by the way in which we organize services.

This one-day workshop will bring together people involved with/interested in building age friendly communities where individuals of all abilities belong.

Activities will include:

- An orientation to the Age Friendly Communities approach
- Poster sessions and mini-workshops which enable sharing of interesting ideas for supporting the inclusion of older adults of all abilities
- Conversation cafés/dialogue - aimed at building community and the bridges which encourage (inclusive) age friendly communities

If you want to be part of building a community which is friendly and inclusive, please join us!
